Senator Voorhees said ,that if the proposition was to issue 100,000 rations of food to the starving Indians it would be more consistent. He referred to the statement of General Miles in a published interview, that the Indians were driven to revolt by starvation, and said it was a crime on the part of the Government to stand by and do nothing ex-cept furnish arms to the whites. The Indians have been suffering for years in silence. The hostilities into which the Indians of the Northwest are being starved would result not merely in starved would result not merely in the destruction of the lives of many In-dians, but of thousands of citizens and hundreds of American soldiers. That condition of things has been brought about by a parsimonicus policy, He thought that a policy had been pursued to take the lands of the Indians and to pay enough for them, to keep the Inpay enough for them to keep the In-dians from starving when disposed of. Senator Hawley spoke briefly, saying he had no objection to these remarks, except they were, perhaps, a little exager-ated. Hedoubted if a shortness of food was the origin of the trouble or that a supply of food would be a cure for it. The difficulty with the Indian service has been a constant change of policy. Heretofore for years it has been impressed upon Congress that the best way to treat the Indian was to starve him to self support, "Root hog or die" has been the BRINGS A NEW YORK SPECULATOR phrase put over the door of those who administered the affairs of Indians. He thought it well to out every inducement to the Indians to turn from dependence on the Government and that it was well to resort to all devices within the limits of justice and reason to induce them to do it. As to the suggestion in the public press that the Government had failed to keep promises made the Indians by the Sioux Commission, he said the Commission had made two sorts of stipulations with the Indians; one written and taken out to the Indians and asked them today for forgery. to accept. The Indians had had cause to complain because of the non-fulfillment of agreements and the Comsentatives came to Washington and met the Commission a full discussion was had, and an agreement embodied in the bill, which was submitted to Congress by the President. A bill thus framed, to the complete satisfaction of the Indians, passed the Senate, but where it was now he did not know. He knew the skirts of the Executive and of the Senate were clear of any attempt to de-

Senator Pierce, of North Dakota, said

he had sometimes wondered why the white people did not themselves go on the warpath because they were hungry. The Indians seemed to get nobler as well as hungrier the further people got away from them. He lived near the Sioux reservation, and this was the first time he heard it asserted that the Indians were on the warpath because they were hungry. He saw Indians every day in the town where he lived, and they were sleeker and better fed, apparthan the Senator from Indiana, He had no doubt but that in some of the agencies there are Indians who complain of insufficient food, but he quesoned very much whether General Miles made the statement attributed to
